Description of Specialisation

I am a General Practitioner who specialises specialise in a wide range of Skin Conditions. I have a special interest in skin cancer diagnosis using dermatoscopy, skincare and skin cancer surgery and have developed several new techniques and methods in the field of skin cancer surgery. My academic works have been widely published internationally, and my findings are used internationally as a guide for dermatologic surgery. After completing medicine, I undertook my residency training was in general and plastic surgery. After completing three years of plastic surgical training, I decided to become a General Practitioner who specialises specialise in skin cancer medicine and I am now internationally recognised for aspects of my expertise am now considered an international leader in the field. My research interests are in skin lines to reduce scarring, sunscreens, skin cancer, skin biomechanics and sun damage.
